

Polaris- A Different Dream

Utopia... It is a word that conjures florid descriptions of lighthouse cities, dreamscapes that exist only in the dog-eared pages of history and taunt humanity from a reality just out of reach. In an age of rampant cynicism, it easy to forget that the impossibility of utopia is what makes its pursuit of the noblest order. It is a chase that necessitates the dissolution of division, and calls on every class, creed, and color to seek common betterment. In this unified effort, a truly new and powerful kind of community is chartered. The result is a bright star that guides us to utopia. It is Polaris.

Cradled by 14 kilometers of Aegean coastline, Polaris embodies the commitment of a people hellbent for the horizon. Like the tide, every aspect of life here is always on the move. But whether meandering the pedestrian pathways, pedaling the cycling paths, or gliding along people movers, this kinetic community is always in step to the clarion cadence of progress. "Polarians" are connected in this forward march by a layout that seamlessly links picturesque neighborhoods to a busy commercial center.

Polaris' existence relies on the participation of every age, background, and experience. The collaborative nature of life here makes room for everyone from young professionals to new families to those in the prime of their golden years. Together, Polaris' populace authors a culture that fosters diverse talents, interests, and hobbies. These form the vital strata upon which this unique society is built and ensure that the city will grow with its citizens.

Optimistic architecture that looks boldly and resiliently ahead to the next century is the resplendent backdrop of the new stories Polarians write every day. Parks and plazas converge the paths of routine comings and goings into petri dishes of new ideas, where random exchanges can become the seed crystal of new innovation.

Along the shores of the Aegean Sea, the frenetic pace of the city slows for serene reflection. Here, man and nature join in recognition of their mutual reverence. At day's end, the bond of community convokes all walks of life around proud pageantry celebrating the singular culture they have created together. As the sun sets and city illuminates, those lighthouse cities of yore no longer sound so outlandish.

Like its people, Polaris' mission is always moving. Those who live here know they are piloting a vessel that will never reach its final destination. But that won't stop them from trying together. After all, this is the true spirit of community. This is Polaris – A Different Dream.